

Dr. Saira Batool

Dr. Saira Batool works as a lecturer in the Department of Sociology International Islamic University, Islamabad, Pakistan. She holds a PhD from the IIUI which she completed in 2020. Her PhD dissertation is titled “Pursuit of Happiness: Gendered Experiences in Socio-Cultural Context of Pakistan.” She Specializes in Sociology of Happiness and her research interests include Sociology of Gender and discourse, gendered experiences in diverse cultural orientations and gendered happiness. Some of the courses she teaches include Sociological theories, Qualitative Research, Sociology of Globalization, Sociology of Education, and Pakistani Culture and Society. She can be reached at; saira.batool@iiu.edu.pk

Selected Publications

1. Nawaz, S., Ali, R., Batool, S., Alauddin, Z. (2015). Use of internet among youth and its effect on library attendance. Pakistan Journal of Information Management & Libraries (PJIM&L), 16.
2. Batool, S. Ali, R. (2020). Cultural Odyssey and Happiness: Gendered happiness of Divorce, Separation and Widowhood in Pakistan. International Review of Social Sciences, 8(7), 97-107.
3. Ali, R. & Batool, S. (2015). Stereotypical Identities Discourse Analysis of Media Images of Women in Pakistan. Multidisciplinary Journal of Gender Studies. 4(2):690.
4. Batool, S. Ali, R. (2020). Rethinking reflexivity and positionality in researching happiness: Negotiating fieldwork dilemmas in Pakistan. Women Studies' International Forum. Volume 89.
5. Batool, S. Ali, R., & Mehmood, S. (2017). Corporeal Punishment and its Effect on Students Learning: A Study of Selected Schools in Rawalpindi and Rawat, Pakistan Journal of Criminology, 9(1), 15-28.