

INTRODUCTION

As we know that legal education is a professional education which prepares its students to fill a variety of societal roles like becoming Judges, Lawyers, Corporate Executives, Public Servants, NGOs' Officials and as Politicians. Legal Education is the first step in the process of preparing legal professionals, or for providing essential skills for the above careers. The basic purposes of law education is to provide essential analytical skills, legal knowledge, developing competence, and providing motivation for engaging with the ethical dimensions of professional life.

The point of instant relevance for this conference is the latest judgment of the Honorable Supreme Court of Pakistan about legal education. This is a highly critical judgment about the state of legal education in the country that requires proper attention from the key stakeholders i.e. Academicians, Lawyers, Judges, the Bar Council, and Higher Education Commission etc. The said judgment calls for fundamental changes in both the structure and content of legal education in Pakistan to produce lawyers who are not only smart problem-solvers but also responsible professionals committed to service of both clients and the larger society.

To impart sound legal education there is an urgent and compelling need for good Law Schools that have competent faculty, effective academic programs and necessary infrastructure to provide essential skills and institutional commitment to do the best and a clear mission and willingness to achieve excellence.

It is one of the primary responsibilities of the legal fraternity in the country to have a serious discourse on how to bring real changes in the system of legal education in Pakistan keeping in view guidelines given by the Honourable Supreme Court in this regard. This requires a valuable contribution from all the stakeholders of legal education in which law schools and law faculty have to play a crucial role. Changes in the legal education are essential if the legal profession is to regain its lost ideals and identity as a moral community.

It is in this context that the Department of Law at the International Islamic University, Islamabad is going to organize an International Conference on "Legal Education in Pakistan: Opportunities and Challenges" to provide an exceptional opportunity for academics, scholars and researchers from home and abroad to present and discuss their academic papers on the various fields pertaining to legal education.
