

Introduction

Translation Studies in this era of globalization is rising significantly, overcoming all branches of Linguistics in a challenging way. Consequently, the role of intellectuals, scholars and theorists, in a broad range of sectors, is more important than ever before. The ability to decode cultures and bridge worlds—translation and interpreting—is one of the most highly demanded skills today. Those who love languages can become part of this dynamic domain to explore the new emerging areas of this interdisciplinary science along with having the qualities of being effective professional translators and interpreters in a variety of fields.

Due to its fast growing importance, many renowned universities in the world offer academic programs at all levels i.e. Bachelor to Ph.D.

MS Translation Studies in the Department of Translation and Interpretation, International Islamic University, is proposed with the view to fulfill emerging needs to produce researchers, academicians & professionals in the domain.
